New A-Weapons Now Made On Assembly Line

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission reported today that production of "advanced" atomic weapons has been put on an assembly-line basis and discussed experimentation, which could be adapted to manufacture of the super-lethal hydrogen bomb.

The disclosures were made in the AEC's seventh semi-annual report to Congress, which was further highlighted by these statements:

1. Output of fissionable material set new records and stock piling of A-bombs "moved on at a growing pace."
2. An "adequate" supply of uranium ore—key A-bomb material—is being obtained at present and "negotiations abroad and mining and processing plant development during 1949 placed the prospects for continuing supply on a firmer basis."

3. NEW WEAPONS tests are in prospect at Eniwetok in the mid-Pacific, which is being converted to a permanent test site.
4. Scientists were recruited "more nearly to the desired levels" but to speed the atomic energy program "this nation requires, above all else, technical men of talent and training."
5. Work has started on new atomic reactors, including a "perpetual furnace" designed to create more fuel than it consumes, at the same time producing power. Thus it is hoped

H-Bomb Readied

Scientist Says He Has Model

ACKLEY, Ia., Jan. 31—A research scientist in Ackley wrote the Atomic Energy Commission today that he has a model hydrogen bomb which could be activated in 12 hours.

The inventor, Dr. Ralph Lucas, described the pilot model of the bomb to the AEC, provided the government would stand the costs of testing it. He said he had spent $35,000 in developing it and had no more cash available for the tests.

The question of U. S. development of such a bomb, said to be potentially a thousand times more powerful than present atom bomb models, is now before President Truman.

Scientists have expressed the opinion that it is possible to develop a weapon of such terrific destructive power, and have urged that the United States take steps to do so before it is made by any other country.

Mrs. Lucas said in Ackley her husband had written Lewis Strauss of the AEC yesterday about the matter.

In a radio broadcast over station WHO in Des Moines, the proposed bomb was described as using argon and hydrogen gas and a vacuumizing process.

Copies of the letter describing the invention were made for President Truman, and U. S. Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, member of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

Dr. Lucas described himself as a graduate of New York university in 1931, and said he received a doctor of science degree. He is 58 years old.

eventually to propel ships, planes and automobiles and supply energy for heating, lighting and other industrial uses.

The report made no reference to the hydrogen bomb, reportedly 1,000 times as powerful as the first A-bombs.

The document did not, in fact, even hint that there is such a weapon as the new terror which faces President Truman with a fateful decision in the near future—whether to build the H-bomb.

However, in reporting on its research program, the AEC described a method of converting hydrogen into helium, key to production of a hydrogen bomb.

The system described involves the use of Hydrogen 3, or "Tritium," which becomes Helium 3 when a beta particle is emitted. Both are rare but AEC said "physicists and chemists have sought to produce (them) for use in research. It added:

"IMPORTANT information has been gained at Argonne, Los Alamos and other AEC laboratories."

Los Alamos is the weapons research laboratory. There are several known, simpler methods of attaining the hydrogen conversion, the one under most discussion being the use of lithium as an agent.

Other points disclosed in the report: High costs, made necessary by wartime urgency, have been

Navy Gives Big Heave-Ho But Mud Keeps Mighty Mo

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 31—A huge salvage flotilla and 5,000 men failed today in a mighty two-hour attempt to free the Battleship Missouri from a Chesapeake Bay mudbank that has held her fast since Jan. 17.

Other attempts to get the Big Mo afloat are scheduled for tomorrow and Thursday.

Today's salvage operation was billed simply as a "rehearsal" for a major effort Thursday. But the men and ships involved went all out to provide a "going away present" for Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, retiring tomorrow as Atlantic Fleet commander.

Seventeen tugs pulled and pushed at the mighty battlewagon in the darkness and peaspout fog in the attempt to move her into a channel leading to high water. But the Missouri stayed fast.

POINT COMFORT, Va., Jan. 31—The proud Battleship Missouri may be hung on a rocky craig.

When today's giant effort failed to free the 45,000-ton battlewagon, Rear Admiral Homer N. Wallin of the Norfolk Naval Base for the first time raised the question that more than mud is holding the vessel.

"It's possible," he told newsmen, "that a large rock is jammed into the bottom and is holding her."

The admiral indicated his belief that unless the Missouri was being held by such a rock, or series of rocks, today's huge operation would have sent the (Continued on Page Two)

British Throats Not Very Dry

LONDON, Jan. 31—Britain's "pubs" have fallen on evil days. Hundreds of saloon keepers throughout the country face shutdowns because of what they call an "alarming" decrease in the number of beer drinkers.

Alderman Albert Dyer, chairman of the Licensed Victuallers Society, reported beer consumption dropped 72 million gallons from 1948 to 1949.

sharply cut by peacetime innovations until, for example, expense of uranium production has been halved.

The "batch" method of creating fissionable material will be replaced by a "continuous" process.

In 1944 scientists risked death to gain vital knowledge by combining two batches of uranium to discover the "critical" point when an atomic explosion would ensue. The venture was called "dragon"—short for the obvious "tickling the dragon's tail."

Atomic security involves guarding 900,000 documents and "hundreds of thousands" of drawings. Twenty percent of all AEC personnel comprise the guard force. AEC reported "no known theft, loss or compromise" in thousands of ton-mile shipments of materials between installations each month.

THE COMMISSION, in conclusion, warned:

"It is no secret that our great structure of nuclear technology has been built on an extraordinarily slim foundation of basic knowledge."

"It was a magnificent gamble and we won. But the time for strengthening our foundations is here and we should proceed with all possible vigor."

They wound up on a reassuring note: "The nation's atomic energy enterprise is on a sound footing."

IN A STATEMENT

issued at the white house shortly before 2 p. m., the President said:

"It is part of my responsibility as commander in chief of the armed forces to see to it that our country is able to defend itself against any possible aggressor."

"Accordingly, I have directed the Atomic Energy Commission to continue its work on all forms of atomic weapons, including the so-called hydrogen or super-bomb."

"Like all other work in the field of atomic weapons, it is being and will be carried forward on a basis consistent with the over-all objectives of our program for peace and security."

"This we shall continue to do until a satisfactory plan for international control of atomic energy is achieved."

"We shall also continue to examine all those factors that affect our program for peace in this country's security."

The statement was handed to reporters without comment by White House Secretary Charles G. Ross.

Ross called reporters to his office to hand them the statement. He directed that his office door be closed until all reporters had been handed the statement.

"No one is to leave this office until everyone has a copy of the statement."

The statements were handed out, and reporters then raced out of Ross' office for their telephones to flash the story to the world.

Hydrogen Gets Truman's Nod

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—President Truman today approved U. S. construction of the Hydrogen Bomb, a weapon potentially 1,000 times more powerful than the Atomic Bomb.

The President said in a statement that he has directed the Atomic Energy Commission to go ahead with work on the so-called hydrogen or super "hell" bomb.

Mr. Truman said that he was acting on his responsibility as "commander in chief of the armed forces."

He said that he took the action in the interest of defending the United States against "any possible aggressor."

The President said that it is the duty of this country to continue the development of all forms of atomic weapons including the hydrogen bomb until a satisfactory plan for international control of atomic energy is achieved.

He further declared that union policy stipulates that the local members take a vote whether to strike. No instructions have been received here, Stewart said.

As a result, local union officials, as of Tuesday, were of the opinion the strike call had no effect here.

Affiliation with the CWA came last Summer when the independent union to which the local employees belonged was absorbed by the CIO.

A NEW CONTRACT went into effect about Sept. after the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio granted the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. a higher rate.

The nationwide walkout is scheduled for 6 a. m. Feb. 8.

William N. Margolis, deputy to Conciliation Director Cyrus S. Ching, said in Washington that field units of the service "have been ordered to get very active in this matter."

Ching returned Monday night from a month-long tour of Pacific Coast cities. Margolis' office indicated that Ching would personally direct conciliation efforts in the phone contract dispute.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the CIO Communications Workers of America, told reporters that 100,000 workers are affected directly by the strike call.

He explained that another 220,000 non-striking Bell System employees are bound by the union's constitution not to cross picket lines which will be thrown around "almost every telephone exchange in the country."

The union is demanding a general wage increase without naming a specific figure. It seeks a reduction in the work week from 40 to 35 hours, improved pensions and other benefits.

Huge Landslide Blocks Highway

MARIETTA, Jan. 31—A gigantic landslide of thousands of tons of rock today blocked off the famed Skyline Drive highway and a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad branch between Marietta and Belpre.

answer made clear. He asked the county chiefs if they would consider a new contract, was told to have it drawn, that they would "look it over."

The building, soot-grimed remnant of the gaslight era, was constructed as a memorial to ex-soldiers of Pickaway County. Popular approval of a bond issue for $25,000 to build it was obtained in Circleville in 1890.

It was agreed that first floor room would be made suitable for a library and armory, that the floor would be leased to Circleville for 99 years, renewable forever. The city was granted the lease on condition it keep up the building and grounds, pay insurance and the janitor's salary.

The first floor still houses the public library. The armory went out of use before World War I. City council moved to relinquish the lease Nov. 7, 1941. Under terms of the original agreement, the building was to be under the control of the Monumental Association, except for the portion leased to the city.

The agreement specified that the second floor was to be for free use of Pickaway County ex-soldiers and all service connected organizations. It was to be open to the public at all times. The 1890 agreement further

Telephone Strike May Miss Here

Local Unions Get No Instructions

While the Federal Conciliation Service in Washington D. C. moved Tuesday to head off a nationwide telephone strike scheduled for Feb. 8, there appeared considerable doubt whether Circleville phone workers would join the walkout.

William E. Stewart, steward of the Circleville local, CIO Communications Workers of America, said the local unit had not been notified concerning the strike.

He further declared that union policy stipulates that the local members take a vote whether to strike. No instructions have been received here, Stewart said.

As a result, local union officials, as of Tuesday, were of the opinion the strike call had no effect here.

ded to earth yesterday at Mount Lorne, 21 miles south of Whitehorse.

Its pilot, Lt. Charles Hardin, dazed and suffering from facial cuts that smarted painfully in 30-below-zero temperatures, walked tortuously through the deep snow for six hours to reach the Alcan highway and help.

He was picked up there by a U. S. Army weasel and a rescue party was dispatched to the five men left behind at the wrecked plane. They included Hardin's co-pilot, three other Air Force men and a civilian news correspondent from Anchorage, Alaska. Hardin accompanied the rescue group.

AT LAST REPORT, the rescue party, moving in six-wheeled snowmobiles, had reached a point on the subarctic highway where it was to leave the road and push across the trackless wilderness to Mount Lorne.

Awaiting rescue, the men at the crash scene built a big bonfire to protect themselves against the terrible cold, according to Hardin.

Extent of their injuries was not known. But Air Commodore Martin Costello, Royal Canadian Air Force coordinator of the international search for the C-54, said he believed none of the men aboard the crashed C-47 was seriously hurt.

The missing C-54 left Elmen-dorf Field at Anchorage enroute to El Paso, Texas, via Great Falls, Montana, and vanished last Thursday.

The Airforce transport, which carried a young expectant mother and her two-year old boy among other passengers, last reported by radio over the town of Snag, 300 miles north of Whitehorse. All passengers were Army personnel or relatives.

Weather in the Yukon area was reported cloudy with lowering temperatures which consistently drop below zero at this time of the year.

Yesterday, some 60 planes based at Great Falls, Whitehorse and Fort Nelson covered an estimated 43,500 square miles in a systematic hunt for the missing C-54.

Chrysler Strike Still Unsettled

DETROIT, Jan. 31—Prospects were dim today for any resumption of negotiations before next week in the six-day-old Chrysler strike that has left 120,000 auto workers jobless.

Federal and state mediators reportedly plan to call UAW-CIO and company representatives into separate session later this week, but there appeared little possibility the two sides would get together before next Monday at the earliest.

Fact-Finding Panel To Be Named

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—President Truman today set up a presidential fact-finding board in the coal dispute and appealed to the miners to go back to a five-day work week.

The presidential appeal for a return to normal production was for a 70-day period beginning Feb. 6. He took the action outside the provision of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Mr. Truman sent a telegraphic appeal to both mine operators and John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers union.

Mr. Truman said in his telegram: "The government can no longer stand by and permit the continuance of conditions which have such a serious effect upon the public interest."

THE PRESIDENT proposed:

1. "That work be performed and normal production maintained for a period of 70 days beginning Feb. 6."

2. "That representatives of the parties appear before and cooperate with a fact-finding board which I shall appoint."

Mr. Truman said that the fact-finding board will consist of three persons representing the public—none from government, industry or labor.

He said the board "would be empowered to inquire into any and all facts and circumstances relating to the current dispute."

The President said the board will be requested to make its report, including findings and recommendations, within 60 days after Feb. 6.

He said on his telegram: "The recommendations would be addressed to the parties and to the President, outlining the procedures and the grounds for a fair and equitable settlement of the current dispute."

"Immediately after the publication of the board's report, representatives of the parties would be called into conference by the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who would seek to assist them in resolving their dispute in light of the recommendations or any modification thereof."

Russians Give Nod To Rebels In Viet-Nam

LONDON, Jan. 31—Russia announced recognition today of a Communist-led rebel Indo-Chinese regime with which France is at war and moved to consolidate growing Soviet strength in the Far East.

The Moscow radio said that the Soviet Union formally recognized yesterday the "democratic republic" of Viet-Nam led by Ho Chi-minh. France recognized the Viet-Nam government under Bao Dai and has been trying to put down the Ho revolt for three years.

Earlier, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said that delegates of the "provincial people's republic" of Sinkiang had arrived in Moscow to join in Russo-Chinese treaty negotiations.

Sinkiang is one of the four Northern Chinese territories which Secretary of State Acheson charged Russia is trying to attach. The others are Outer Mongolia, Inner Mongolia and Manchuria. The Communist Peking radio branded the charge a "complete fabrication" today.

The Sinkiang delegation is headed by Deputy Premier Sayfutdin Aizov. Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Chinese "people's republic" has been in Moscow since Dec. 16, and his foreign minister, Chou En-Lai, arrived there Jan. 20.

Jimmy Rhodes Raps Tammany Tactics Of GOP

COLUMBUS, Jan. 31—Columbus Mayor James A. Rhodes was given the poor reputation treatment at a Republican McKinley Day dinner in Dayton last night.

Rhodes and State Treasurer Don H. Ebricht, who filed his petitions yesterday, were invited to the dinner as gubernatorial candidates of the party. However, when the time came for seating the guests, Ebricht was at the speakers' table—and Rhodes was placed in the figurative deep-freeze.

The Columbus mayor walked out and had a sandwich in a drugstore.

Rhodes termed the snub as "a shocking revelation that Tammany tactics are going to be used to protect 'favored' candidates in the coming Republican primary election."

He stated: "I am not accustomed to snubs either as mayor of Ohio's capital city or as a Republican candidate."

"I never imagined a distinguished event like a McKinley Day rally would become the stage where party leaders would parade bad manners."

Weather in the Yukon area was reported cloudy with lowering temperatures which consistently drop below zero at this time of the year.

Yesterday, some 60 planes based at Great Falls, Whitehorse and Fort Nelson covered an estimated 43,500 square miles in a systematic hunt for the missing C-54.

Doubt over who is accountable for the huge, creaky-staircase structure was expressed Monday by Ed Ebert, association member. He explained that the first floor, housing the public library, is under jurisdiction of the library board of trustees.

But who is responsible for the upper section? Ebert wants the answer made clear. He asked the county chiefs if they would consider a new contract, was told to have it drawn, that they would "look it over."

The building, soot-grimed remnant of the gaslight era, was constructed as a memorial to ex-soldiers of Pickaway County. Popular approval of a bond issue for $25,000 to build it was obtained in Circleville in 1890.

It was agreed that first floor room would be made suitable for a library and armory, that the floor would be leased to Circleville for 99 years, renewable forever. The city was granted the lease on condition it keep up the building and grounds, pay insurance and the janitor's salary.

The first floor still houses the public library. The armory went out of use before World War I.

City council moved to relinquish the lease Nov. 7, 1941. Under terms of the original agreement, the building was to be under the control of the Monumental Association, except for the portion leased to the city.

The agreement specified that the second floor was to be for free use of Pickaway County ex-soldiers and all service connected organizations. It was to be open to the public at all times. The 1890 agreement further stated that the assembly hall on the second floor could be rented by trustees of the association, but could be used free by the library board for lectures.

Out of revenue from the building, trustees of the Monumental Association were to retain enough to provide for a United States flag and $50 annually for Decoration Day expenses. Balance was to be paid into Circleville treasury.

Surplus in any year was to be divided equally between association trustees and city library fund, with shares of each appropriated each year by city council.

Telephone Strike May Miss Here

Local Unions Get
No Instructions

While the Federal Conciliation Service in Washington D. C. moved Tuesday to head off a nationwide telephone strike scheduled for Feb. 8, there appeared considerable doubt whether Circleville phone workers would join the walkout.

William E. Stewart, steward of the Circleville local, CIO Communications Workers of America, said the local unit had not been notified concerning the strike.

He further declared that union policy stipulates that the local members take a vote whether to strike. No instructions have been received here, Stewart said.

As a result, local union officials, as of Tuesday, were of the opinion the strike call had no effect here.

Affiliation with the CWA came last Summer when the independent union to which the local employees belonged was absorbed by the CIO.

A NEW CONTRACT went into effect about Sept. after the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio granted the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. a higher rate.

The nationwide walkout is scheduled for 6 a. m. Feb. 8.

William N. Margolis, deputy to Conciliation Director Cyrus S. Ching, said in Washington that field units of the service "have been ordered to get very active in this matter."

Ching returned Monday night from a month-long tour of Pacific Coast cities. Margolis' office indicated that Ching would personally direct conciliation efforts in the phone contract dispute.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the CIO Communications Workers of America, told reporters that 100,000 workers are affected directly by the strike call.

He explained that another 220,000 non-striking Bell System employees are bound by the union's constitution not to cross picket lines which will be thrown around "almost every telephone exchange in the country."

The union is demanding a general wage increase without naming a specific figure. It seeks a reduction in the work week from 40 to 35 hours, improved pensions and other benefits.

Huge Landslide Blocks Highway

MARIETTA, Jan. 31—A gigantic landslide of thousands of tons of rock today blocked off the famed Skyline Drive highway and a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad branch between Marietta and Belpre.

The landslide, which occurred at 6:30 a. m. after an all-night rain, covered about 200 feet of State Route Seven and pushed the adjacent railroad tracks out of line for almost an equal distance.

C-54 STILL MISSING

Ground Crew Pushes Hunt For Would-Be Rescuers

WHITEHORSE, Y. T., Jan. 31—A ground party struggled through hip-deep snow today toward five injured men whose plane crash-landed on a Yukon mountainside during the search for a U. S. C-54 missing with 44 persons aboard.

The C-47 search plane, part of the widespread operation which has found no trace of the missing Skymaster, thud-ded to earth yesterday at Mount Lorne, 21 miles south of Whitehorse.

Its pilot, Lt. Charles Hardin, dazed and suffering from facial cuts that smarted painfully in 30-below-zero temperatures, walked tortuously through the deep snow for six hours to reach the Alcan highway and help.

He was picked up there by a U. S. Army weasel and a rescue party was dispatched to the five men left behind at the wrecked plane. They included Hardin's co-pilot, three other Air Force men and a civilian news correspondent from Anchorage, Alaska. Hardin accompanied the rescue group.

Jimmy Rhodes Raps Tammany Tactics Of GOP

COLUMBUS, Jan. 31—Columbus Mayor James A. Rhodes was given the poor relation treatment at a Republican McKinley Day dinner in Dayton last night.

Rhodes and State Treasurer Don H. Ebricht, who filed his petitions yesterday, were invited to the dinner as gubernatorial candidates of the party. However, when the time came for seating the guests, Ebricht was at the speakers' table—Rhodes was placed in the figurative deep-freeze.

The Columbus mayor walked out and had a sandwich in a drugstore.

Rhodes termed the snub as "a shocking revelation that Tammany tactics are going to be used to protect 'favored' candidates in the coming Republican primary election."

He stated: "I am not accustomed to snubs either as mayor of Ohio's capital city or as a Republican candidate."

"I never imagined a distinguished event like a McKinley Day rally would become the stage where party leaders would parade bad manners."

AT LAST REPORT, the rescue party, moving in six-wheeled snowmobiles, had reached a point on the subarctic highway where it was to leave the road and push across the trackless wilderness to Mount Lorne.

Awaiting rescue, the men at the crash scene built a big bonfire to protect themselves against the terrible cold, according to Hardin.

Extent of their injuries was not known. But Air Commodore Martin Costello, Royal Canadian Air Force coordinator of the international search for the C-54, said he believed none of the men aboard the crashed C-47 was seriously hurt.

The missing C-54 left Elmenford Field at Anchorage enroute to El Paso, Texas, via Great Falls, Montana, and vanished last Thursday.

The Airforce transport, which carried a young expectant mother and her two-year old boy among other passengers, last reported by radio over the town of Snag, 300 miles north of Whitehorse. All passengers were Army personnel or relatives.

Weather in the Yukon area was reported cloudy with lowering temperatures which consistently drop below zero at this time of the year.

Yesterday, some 60 planes based at Great Falls, Whitehorse and Fort Nelson covered an estimated 43,500 square miles in a systematic hunt for the missing C-54.

Chrysler Strike Still Unsettled

DETROIT, Jan. 31—Prospects were dim today for any resumption of negotiations before next week in the six-day-old Chrysler strike that has left 120,000 auto workers jobless.

Federal and state mediators reportedly plan to call UAW-CIO and company representatives into separate session later this week, but there appeared little possibility the two sides would get together before next Monday at the earliest.

Fact-Finding Panel To Be Named

Appeal Is Made
For 5-Day Week

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—President Truman today set up a presidential fact-finding board in the coal dispute and appealed to the miners to go back to a five-day work week.

The presidential appeal for a return to normal production was for a 70-day period beginning Feb. 6. He took the action outside the provision of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Mr. Truman sent a telegraphic appeal to both mine operators and John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers union.

Mr. Truman said in his telegram:

"The government can no longer stand by and permit the continuance of conditions which have such a serious effect upon the public interest."

THE PRESIDENT proposed: 1. "That work be performed and normal production maintained for a period of 70 days beginning Feb. 6."

2. "That representatives of the parties appear before and cooperate with a fact-finding board which I shall appoint."

Mr. Truman said that the fact-finding board will consist of three persons representing the public—none from government, industry or labor.

He said the board "would be empowered to inquire into any and all facts and circumstances relating to the current dispute."

The President said the board will be requested to make its report, including findings and recommendations, within 60 days after Feb. 6.

He said on his telegram:

"The recommendations would be addressed to the parties and to the President, outlining the procedures and the grounds for a fair and equitable settlement of the current dispute."

"Immediately after the publication of the board's report, representatives of the parties would be called into conference by the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who would seek to assist them in resolving their dispute in light of the recommendations or any modification thereof."

Russians Give Nod To Rebels In Viet-Nam

LONDON, Jan. 31—Russia announced recognition today of a Communist-led rebel Indo-Chinese regime with which France is at war and moved to consolidate growing Soviet strength in the Far East.

The Moscow radio said that the Soviet Union formally recognized yesterday the "democratic republic" of Viet-Nam led by Ho Chi-minh. France recognized the Viet-Nam government under Bao Dai and has been trying to put down the Ho revolt for three years.

Earlier, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said that delegates of the "provincial people's republic" of Sinkiang had arrived in Moscow to join in Russo-Chinese treaty negotiations.

Sinkiang is one of the four Northern Chinese territories which Secretary of State Acheson charged Russia is trying to attach. The others are Outer Mongolia, Inner Mongolia and Manchuria. The Communist Peking radio branded the charge a "complete fabrication" today.

The Sinkiang delegation is headed by Deputy Premier Sayfutdin Aizov. Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Chinese "people's republic" has been in Moscow since Dec. 16, and his foreign minister, Chou En-Lai arrived there Jan. 20.

Fact-Finding Panel To Be Named.

"THE PARTIES or either of them would be free to accept or reject the recommendations of the board as they see fit."

Mr. Truman said that in making the proposal "I do not wish to interfere with any bargaining conferences that may assist in the settlement of this dispute."

He asked that he be informed by noon Saturday "if the normal production of coal will be resumed on Monday." He said:

"If production will be so resumed this proposal may be disregarded. If you cannot inform me that normal production will be resumed on Monday without reference to this proposal, I would then want your reply to this proposal by 5 p. m. Saturday, and I urge your acceptance in the national interest."

Mrs. Clark Will Named Head Of Library Board

Officers of Pickaway County Library Board were elected Monday night at an organization meeting. Mrs. Clark Will of East Mound street was chosen president. Miss Nell Osterle of Ashville was elected vice-president. Mrs. Enid Denham, head librarian, will serve the board as secretary and clerk.

On the library staff for 1950 will be Miss Welmina Phebus and Miss Jessie Cummings and Mrs. Barton Deming. Miss Katherine McKinnon will be librarian of the county Bookmobile and Weldon Owens will be Bookmobile driver.

Serving on the county library board are Mrs. Will, Miss Osterle, Mrs. John Dunlap Jr., Mrs. Kermit Duntz, Clark K. Hunsicker, A. W. Bosworth and Ray Davis.

Girl, 9, Burned As Dress Flames In Grocery

A nine-year-old Hayward avenue girl received second degree burns to her body at about 3:30 p. m. Monday when her dress caught fire.

She is Judy Blevins who lives with her sister at 137 Hayward avenue.

The youngster had been in a neighborhood grocery at the time of the mishap. Her dress caught fire when she backed too close to a gas stove.

Mrs. S. W. Ankrom said the flames were put out when the girl was wrapped in coats and blankets, and the youngster was rushed into Berger hospital for treatment.

Hospital attaches said the youngster suffered second degree burns to the body, chiefly to the hips. Her condition is fair.

Columbus Man Has No Permit

Bill Wolfe, 27, of Columbus, was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to two days in jail by Mayor Walter Heise in South Bloomfield Monday for driving while his license is revoked.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Weiss said he arrested Wolfe for a minor traffic violation, but that the other charge was filed when Wolfe stated that his license had been revoked. Wolfe's admission was backed up by the bureau of motor vehicles.

Drunk Driving Cited After Bump Of Cruiser

Only one accident was reported Monday night as the result of the icy drizzle which fell in Circleville—and that accident involved the city police cruiser.

Officers Earl Wallace and Rod List reported that they had been at the intersection of Pickaway and Franklin streets late Monday to turn off the traffic signal there when the mishap occurred.

They said that another auto, parked about 15 yards from the intersection, had remained motionless throughout the light-switching procedure, but that when the police cruiser was started up the car whirled into the cruiser.

The other auto was driven by Edgel McNichols, 33, of South Bloomfield, who is booked for drunken driving.

The officers said that McNichols had scraped only about a three-inch hole through the ice on his windshield and apparently was unable to see the cruiser. Damage was minor.

Drunk Driver Is Fined $100

Glenn B. Forrest, 25, of 434 East Union street was fined $100 and costs Monday in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller for drunken driving.

Forrest was arrested on East Mound street by Officer Rod List.

Beside four sons and four daughters who survive are four brothers, Wesley Graves of Kingston, Wilson Graves of Clarksburg, Walter Graves of Londonderry and William Graves of Allensville.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday in Londonderry.

Solons Ponder Legal Angle In Sheep Claim

Does Pickaway County pay for dog-mangled sheep when the owner lives in another county?

The question furrowed brows of county commissioners Tuesday when they pondered the case of sheep killed in Monroe Township and owned by Frank Lambert of Fayette County.

Dog Warden Harry Riffle explained that dogs killed four Lambert sheep on his Monroe Township land. Lambert, however, lives in Fayette County. Would the commissioners honor his claim?

"A matter of law," said the county chiefs. "We'll get advice."

"I'll look it up," promised legal adviser Guy Cline.

"The claim is filed in the township where the sheep are killed," opined County Auditor Fred Tipton, after consulting the Ohio Code.

Fayette Fair Board Winner Of Court Test

Judge H. M. Rankin has sustained a motion of the Fayette County fair board to strike an answer and 21 interrogatories from the files in the application of the board to have the court impanel a jury to fix compensation for 57 acres of land including Fayette County fairgrounds.

Judge Rankin held that no answer could be filed in the proceedings.

The board made Earl Scott and others defendants in the suit and former Chief Justice Carlington T. Marshall represents the defendants.

The fair board had leased the grounds from the Scotts for many years and with death of the former owner, a year ago, the board sought to acquire the property through court action.

W. W. Hill, attorney for the board, said he would press for early impaneling of the jury to fix compensation.

Burglars Enter Southend Store

Circleville police Tuesday were investigating the theft of $47.65 in cash from a southend grocery store in one of the newest break-ins to date.

The looted store was Ward's grocery at Walnut and Court street, which was entered through a window on the much-travelled Court street side.

Police said a small pinch bar or screwdriver had been used to pry open the window, and that the whole operation failed to awaken residents who live over the store.

Ward Skinner, owner of the store, said that nothing but the cash had been taken.

Liquor Board Ponders Case

The Ohio Board of Liquor Control in Columbus Tuesday took under advisement an accusation against Scioto lodge IBPOEW of Circleville.

The local lodge was accused to making illegal sales.

George Johnson, exalted ruler, and Walter Jones Jr., bartender, admitted to the sales in a hearing before the state panel.

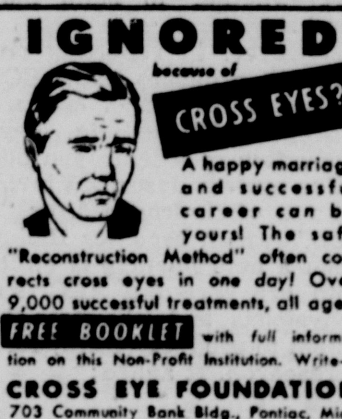

The Ohio board delayed decision on the case when the two lodge officials declared in their plea that their lodge "is the only spot in Circleville where a Negro can buy a drink."

Fellowcraft Club Plans Future

Fellowcraft Club of the Circleville Masonic Blue Lodge held its first regular meeting Monday in Masonic Temple.

The club, founded recently as a social order in the Masonic order for extra-curricular activities, discussed plans for coming social programs and agreed to put on a program for a "family night" in April.

Jim Denman and Jack Pierce were named to head the program committee during this session, according to Wendell Turner, president of the club.

Soviets Relax Blockade Again

BERLIN, Jan. 31—Soviet border guards cleared a backlog of waiting trucks at Helmstedt yesterday and "normalized" road traffic between Berlin and West Germany for the first time in over a week.
The clearance of the waiting vehicles brought to an end, at least temporarily, the "on again, off again" delaying tactics which brought a protest last week from the Western commandants in Berlin.

'Losing Money'

COLUMBUS, Jan. 31—The Columbus Transit Co. contends today it is losing more than $1,000 a day under the present eight-cent bus rate in Columbus. The bus firm reported a loss of $39,653 in December. Although operating under an increase of three cents from the previous nickel rate, the company said it had a total revenue of $535,334 against operating expenses of $565,859.

ABOLISHING GRAVITY

ONE trouble with the world is that there is too much gravity. Not the kind that keeps a person from smiling, but the force which keeps him from rising into the air. This is the opinion of Roger Babson, statistician and head of the Babson Institute, who set up a Gravity Research Foundation to see if a screen could not be devised to cut off gravity, just as some screens will cut off light and others heat. Heavy weights could be lifted easily if a sheet of anti-gravitational material were put under them. The commercial uses would obviously be vast. The Babson foundation has just announced the award of three prizes for the best essays on the subject. None, unfortunately, has any ideas on how to create the desired substance; the winning essay dealt merely with the past history of attempts in this field.

Babson did not say so, but he may have derived his inspiration directly or indirectly from the novelist H. G. Wells. Toward the beginning of the century Wells wrote "The First Men in the Moon," whose heroes devised anti-gravitational material to help them build a ship for traversing space. One drawback was experienced during the manufacture; the air above a sheet of the material roared up into space, fortunately carrying the sheet with it. Had it not, the story relates, the envelope of air which covers the earth would have been sucked off, and the world's population would have been asphyxiated.

This practical objection will naturally have to be overcome before Babson realizes his hope. Perhaps Einstein can find a way.

FOE OF VIOLATORS

THE world's record for tagging illegally parked cars is said to be held by Christopher Aspell, a Springfield, Massachusetts, patrolman. He tagged 33,510 cars last year, and in 1948 only 956 less than that number. Perhaps he should receive an award of some sort for helping to keep traffic moving and trying to make it safer.

It is not always the best police practice to see how many tickets can be issued and how many arrests can be made. But any city with one or two patrolmen like Christopher Aspell is likely to have a body of motorists who think twice before leaving their cars in "No Parking" zones.

Nature has been pushed around again with the announcement that fog now can be produced artificially. We are inclined to believe, however, that there is already sufficient abundance of the natural product.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In the face of a potential enemy of the dimensions of the Russian universal state, a nation carefully guards its own potentialities. The most serious problem in wartime that faces the United States is the supply of a few essentials, such as raw rubber, tin and other metals, which are obtainable on the American continents and some of which must be imported. Uranium, which is more important in war than in peace, is available in Canada; bauxite in ample quantities is available in Surinam, British Guiana, Curacao and Jamaica; tin from Bolivia and copper from Chile; antimony comes from Chile, Bolivia, Peru, Honduras and Mexico; chrome comes from Cuba; cobalt from Canada. In a word, war requires integration in a defensible area.

From that standpoint, after our frightful blunders in China for which the State Department is responsible, the 10,000 mile supply line from our West Coast to Southeastern Asia is too long and too difficult to maintain against a fleet of schnorkel submarines operating out of the bays and harbors of Soviet China. Because of our errors, it will be difficult to protect either Japan or the Philippines or even Guam and Hawaii. Our first line of defense, in actual war, has been pushed back by Soviet Russia, to the West Coast.

Taking for granted our favorable relations with Canada, the problem then is, what is our position in Latin America? To maintain more of a union than was achieved at Chapultepec in 1945, it is essential to cultivate not only the self interest but the respect of the Latin American countries. With the exception of Brazil, these countries are culturally related to Spain. They are all Roman Catholic, and that term needs to be understood, for while to most Americans, the Roman Catholic church is a religious sect, to Roman Catholics it is a culture, a way of life. For instance, a Mexican may be anti-clerical, but if he is not a Marxist, he remains a Catholic and his wife and children will be trained in the Catholic faith.

To refuse to recognize Spain and to be offensive to Spain, while recognizing Tito, can only strike a Latin as monstrously illogical, and seeking for logic, he reaches the conclusion that Spain has been rejected by the United States because in that country Catholicism defeated Marxism. As a matter of fact, Spain is the only country in Europe where Christianity and Communism fought it out and Christianity was wholly victorious.

If the foreign and defense policies of the United States are to be integrated, Latin America is more important than Europe, and Spain is more important than any country in Europe because of its cultural influence upon Latin America. A sound policy is an integrated one and this country is on dangerous grounds when its foreign and defense policies are operated in conflict.

SYNOPSIS
Beautiful Celia Dustin is coming on how perfect marriage is to her husband, Mark, a lucky gambler, when her pleasant music is shattered, for he seemingly has forgotten their second wedding anniversary. Celia overheard part of a conversation between Mark and the hotel bell captain, following which Mark drives her ostensibly to a new place for lunch. Mark hasn't forgotten, however. The "new place for lunch" turns out to be an exclusive jeweler's, where Celia chooses a $25,000 ruby bracelet as an anniversary present.

CHAPTER FOUR

"THAT'S about what it looks like," said Mark, with elaborate tolerance, when the clerk said the price of the bracelet was $25,000. He waved a personal subway token toward the two trays. "You're wasting our time with junk like this. If you've nothing better than this to show us, we may as well go elsewhere." He started to get up, but the flustered clerk forestalled him with rapid jerks of his Adam's apple and an outstretched hand.

"I understand perfectly, sir," he stammered. "Perhaps you'd like to see Mr. Voorland himself. Rubies are a personal hobby with him and I'm sure that if he hasn't exactly what you want in stock, he'll be happy to have it made up for you."

Mark said, "I came in to buy something, not to order it for future delivery." He took another cigarette from the humidifier and lit it. "Tell your boss that," he added, and took a deep draft of smoke into his lungs.

Celia sighed and her wistful eyes followed the clerk to the rear as he carried the trays away. "I thought the bracelet was perfect. Mark. Did he say twenty-five thousand dollars?"

Mark chuckled, showing strong white teeth. "Maybe he meant Mexican pesos," he teased. "That stuff was junk, baby." He went on tolerantly. "Why do you suppose I haven't bought you any jewelry these past two years? I've been waiting until I could afford the best. When people look at you I don't want them to feel sorry for me and wonder, 'Dustin must have hit a streak of bad luck. Look at that cheap little bracelet his wife is wearing.' You let me worry about the price," he went on confidently as a tall, solid man approached them from the rear.

Walter Voorland had been designed by nature for the position he held as manager of the most exclusive and expensive jewelry shop in the most exclusive and expensive resort center in the United States. He carried his well-fleshed body with an air of dignified respectability which held none of the subservience of the common shopkeeper, yet with no trace of the insolent hauteur too often found in such an establishment. He was a big-boned man, wearing a conservative brown business suit, a soft white shirt and a subdued flowered cravat. His head was completely bald and pink, and his ruddy face glowed with health and intelligence. His heavy brows were bleached a light tan by the Miami sun, and his gaze was direct and pleasant and friendly. He had a firm handshake for Mark Dustin, and his voice was strong and warm with only a faint touch of his native Holland accent sounding through the cultivated tones.

"I'm very pleased to meet you, sir, and will be happy to be of service to you if I may." "My name is Dustin," Mark told him. He had risen to greet the manager. Mark Dustin, from Colorado," he added, "and this is Mrs. Dustin."

Voorland bowed stiffly from the waist as he took Celia's hand. "Delighted," he said in a tone which made them believe he was, indeed, delighted. "I am at your service." He drew up a chair to the opposite side of the table and, planting his feet together in front of him and placing the palms of his hands on his knees.

"We were told," said Mark, "that your store carries the finest stock of good jewelry in Greater Miami. That's why we came here." Mr. Voorland said, "Naturally." Dustin spread out his hands in a half-humorous gesture. "I had rubies in mind. Perhaps a bracelet. But your clerk brought only one cheap one for us to look at."

"Rubies?" Voorland studied Celia intently, nodding his bald head. "Perfect. With your hair, Mrs. Dustin, and your exquisite complexion, rubies, definitely. Are you a connoisseur, Mr. Dustin?"

"Not a bit of it," Dustin laughed. "I'm just in love with the most beautiful woman in the world and this is our anniversary and I'm looking for something very special to celebrate the occasion."

Voorland lifted his right hand from his knee and reached inside his coat to get a pack of chewing gum. He pulled two of the sticks out and offered them in turn to Celia and Mark Dustin. When they declined, he gravely slid one stick from his paper and thrust it in his mouth.

"My only major vice," he confessed. "I find that I think better and more clearly while chewing gum. It was very trying for me during the war when gum was so scarce."

Neither of them said anything while he munched meditatively. Mark was beginning to look bored, and Celia was losing some of her bright expectancy to disgust and irritation at his smacking.

Presently Voorland said, "Precious gems are my vocation and my avocation, Mr. Dustin. They are my life. I know them all, have studied them all, from the far places whence they come through the great markets and cutting centers of the world. It is curious that you should come to me for rubies. Or, perhaps it is not curious at all. Perhaps you came to me because you have heard I am the greatest authority in the world on rubies." He rolled up the rumpled lids of his deepest eyes and looked at them inquiringly.

Dustin shook his head. "We just happened to drop in," he said with a touch of asperity. "If that dinky bracelet your man showed us is the best..."

"I am about to tell you about rubies, Mr. Dustin," Voorland interrupted, holding up a smooth beefy hand to silence him. "Rubies are the most royal of gems. Diamonds? Bah! Cold and glittering on the surface. Emeralds? They have color and brilliance, but without warmth or vitality. Green is an unpleasant color. It betokens jealousy and hatred. A dangerous color. The sapphire? Better... yes. One could stand to make friends with a true blue sapphire and live with it. It has brilliance and depth and a certain warmth. But the ruby? The ruby changed like that of a lover whose beloved suddenly appears on the scene."

"The ruby is alive," he continued, shifting his eyes from Celia to Mark. "Caught within its depths are the fires of passion, the red glow of eternal desire, the crimson hue of the rising sun. There is a strength and a fierceness and a clean burning fury in the blood-red flames that mark the true, perfect ruby. Formed by nature in the roaring cauldrons of hades itself."

"All right, Mr. Voorland," Dustin interrupted, "you don't have to sell me on rubies. I'm here to buy some. If you haven't anything in stock, we'll go along."

Voorland sighed deeply. He skinned another piece of gum and put it between his jaws and munched ruminatively for a moment, then said, "I'm afraid you don't quite understand, Mr. Dustin. The true ruby is far more rare than any other stone. There are no Cullinans, no Kohinoors. Two of the largest known to history are those belonging to the King of Bhutanpur in India. Fifty-four and three-quarter, and seventeen and one-half carats, both of which are priceless. The bracelet you were shown is a beautiful example of selection and design. Each stone is perfect and uniform, the result of years of tireless seeking among the great markets of the world. The price you were asked..."

"That may all be true," Dustin interrupted him with a careless gesture, "but it doesn't look like much. Nobody except an expert will glance at it twice. I want Celia to have something that will make people sit up and take notice."

LOST 52 LBS. REPORTS MIDDLETOWN LADY

Mrs. H. May, 2109 Finley St., Middletown, Ohio, writes: "A few months ago I weighed 208 lbs., and naturally began overweighting to reduce. A friend of mine told me about Renel. Since taking Renel I have lost 52 pounds and now weigh 156. I have never felt better in my life, and would take nothing for losing weight, but marvelous Renel Concentrate."

Hundreds of others have obtained similar relief from the social and physical discomforts of being overweight. Why not try this effective yet inexpensive method of reducing and enjoy the pleasure of feeling younger and more alive. Try Renel and notice the admiring looks you will receive from your friends as your figure becomes younger and your vitality increases. Just go to your druggist and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Renel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle and then take two tablespoonful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you aren't satisfied with the results, return the empty bottle to the manufacturer and your money will be refunded. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Renel—no starvation diet—no printed diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. Insist upon genuine Renel.

But we'd like to have seen one of those fellows who struck against the three-day week explaining to his wife how he defied John by not working at all.

She says "Why didn't you defy him real good and work a five-day week?" He says "are you crazy?"

Anyway if Hawaii wants statehood the best thing they could do would be to send a hula dancer to make the motions before the House.

he tried using two razors. He saved forty-four seconds, but took seven minutes putting plaster on the places where he had gashed himself.

The fact that there were twelve Gilbreth children sometimes confused Pa, as in the time when he spanked a neighbor's misbehaving moppet in the mistaken conviction it was his own. Still he was sorry there were "only" twelve! He'd look reproachfully at his wife and say, "Never mind, Lillie, I know you did your best." The neighbors weren't so happy about the noisy Gilbreth brood. The lady next door came running to her husband one day to report that the Gilbreth home was on fire. "Thank God," he replied fervently. "Shall I call the fire department?" she persisted. "What's the matter, are you crazy?" he shouted, and dragged her away from the scene. But the fire went out by itself.

NEW YORK—It is convenient enough for most of us to believe and say that we are thousands of miles removed from the last vestiges of barbarism in this world—such vestiges, say, as the bull rings of Madrid or Mexico City—but the truth is they still hunt foxes in New Jersey, just across the Hudson river from the world's most civilized city.

Fox hunting news crept stubbornly into the papers the other afternoon, however, when a particularly whimsical fox led 20 sportsmen and 25 dogs a seven and one-half hour chase from Peapack-Gladstone, N. J., before finally saying, ah, the heck with it and holding up for the night.

The length of the chase was mildly newsworthy, but it also happened that a $500 hound got separated from the pack and never did come to chase flies in the wheatfields or sleep beside a boy fishing in the river but specifically and idiotically to chase a fox.

It seemed a shame about the lost hound. It so easily could have been one of the 20 sportsmen. But those things go that way; in the savage and hedonistic pastime of steep-leashing, for example, it almost always is the horse that has its leg snapped and its brains subsequently and consequently blown out.

The gentleman rider, who talks eloquently of the horse's delight in taking the jumps—although it is a known fact that the horse is one of the stupidest of animals and hasn't the faintest idea he is dying for glory when he trips at Becher's Brook in the Grand National—could be spared just as easily.

At any rate, we all have been reminded once again that, just across the river in New Jersey, a fin-de-siecle barbarism still exists, and I personally am reminded further of E. B. White's famous ballad of Somerset county, The Fox of Peapack. This meditative redecoated got mixed up in a hunt, wearied of it finally and went home to his wife and told her to hurry up and pack, they were shaking the joint.

"There's this about it," said the fox, Dropping his wife a graceful curtsy, "It seems to me a paradox When rural folk go hursty-tursty."

"I like the country hereabout, The Peapack store, the Peapack steeples. But now it's time you found it out: I do not like the Peapack people."

WHIMSY WASN'T CONFINED SOLELY TO NEW JERSEY in the last week or two, however. You remember the shortage of water we have been having here in Manhattan, and some of the hilarious ways described whereby we aaved on its use, such as bravely drinking ginger ale with our bourbon rather than the precious aqua. Well, the next time we looked up from our knitting, there was the Ambassador hotel, one of the lushest Park avenue rooming houses, drilling for a well in its basement.

Closer study disclosed that the idea was not so startling as it appears at first: a brewery used to occupy the hotel site about 35 years ago and, in its day, was supplied with water from wells on the property. Operating on the theory that the wells still were there and the water could be used for washing or for the 600-room air-conditioning system, if not for drinking, the Ambassador called in experts and began to dig for water.

They even used one of those magic men-dowzers, they are called—who walks around with a divining record until it dips suddenly and announces mutely but eloquently that water is below.

There appears to be no truth to the rumor that shortly after all this began, a gentleman in prospector's costume was seen prowling around the St. Regis lobby with a uranium detector clutched in one hand, but it does give one pause.

We must steel ourselves against the day when they move the gold-hunting equipment into the orchestra pit of the Radio City Music Hall, or begin testing for oil under the Empire State. We can deny it no longer; the cycle of life has come full round and we are going back to the land. Next week: a potato patch where Macy's used to be.

THEY ARE REPLACING OUR BEAUTIFULLY DINGY subway trains with assorted new models these days, and this morning I was startled into looking up from my morning paper by the arrival of the most splendid of them all—a chrome job with portholes on the doors, and indirect lighting in the interior and a loudspeaker system through which the trainman whispered, in pure Brooklynese, the names of the approaching stations.

This is not subway life as the New Yorker is given to understand it, and I am afraid it is appalling him. Any day now, I expect a strike of cash customers, who will not board any train from 168th street to Columbus Circle unless Miss Ava Gardner is occupying a forward compartment with her maid.

ABOLISHING GRAVITY

ONE trouble with the world is that there is too much gravity. Not the kind that keeps a person from smiling, but the force which keeps him from rising into the air. This is the opinion of Roger Babson, statistician and head of the Babson Institute, who set up a Gravity Research Foundation to see if a screen could not be devised to cut off gravity, just as some screens will cut off light and others heat. Heavy weights could be lifted easily if a sheet of anti-gravitational material were put under them. The commercial uses would obviously be vast. The Babson foundation has just announced the award of three prizes for the best essays on the subject. None, unfortunately, has any ideas on how to create the desired substance; the winning essay dealt merely with the past history of attempts in this field.

Babson did not say so, but he may have derived his inspiration directly or indirectly from the novelist H. G. Wells. Toward the beginning of the century Wells wrote "The First Men in the Moon," whose heroes devised anti-gravitational material to help them build a ship for traversing space. One drawback was experienced during the manufacture; the air above a sheet of the material roared up into space, fortunately carrying the sheet with it. Had it not, the story relates, the envelope of air which covers the earth would have been sucked off, and the world's population would have been asphyxiated.

This practical objection will naturally have to be overcome before Babson realizes his hope. Perhaps Einstein can find a way.

FOE OF VIOLATORS

THE world's record for tagging illegally parked cars is said to be held by Christopher Aspell, a Springfield, Massachusetts, patrolman. He tagged 33,510 cars last year, and in 1948 only 956 less than that number. Perhaps he should receive an award of some sort for helping to keep traffic moving and trying to make it safer. It is not always the best police practice to see how many tickets can be issued and how many arrests can be made. But any city with one or two patrolmen like Christopher Aspell is likely to have a body of motorists who think twice before leaving their cars in "No Parking" zones.

Nature has been pushed around again with the announcement that fog now can be produced artificially. We are inclined to believe, however, that there is already sufficient abundance of the natural product.

These Days

In the face of a potential enemy of the dimensions of the Russian universal state, a nation carefully guards its own potentialities. The most serious problem in wartime that faces the United States is the supply of a few essentials, such as raw rubber, tin and other metals, which are obtainable on the American continents and some of which must be imported. Uranium, which is more important in war than in peace, is available in Canada; bauxite in ample quantities is available in Surinam, British Guiana, Curacao and Jamaica; tin from Bolivia and copper from Chile; antimony comes from Chile, Bolivia, Peru, Honduras and Mexico; chrome comes from Cuba; cobalt from Canada. In a word, war requires integration in a defensible area.

From that standpoint, after our frightful blunders in China for which the State Department is responsible, the 10,000 mile supply line from our West Coast to Southeastern Asia is too long and too difficult to maintain against a fleet of schnorkel submarines operating out of the bays and harbors of Soviet China. Because of our errors, it will be difficult to protect either Japan or the Philippines or even Guam and Hawaii. Our first line of defense, in actual war, has been pushed back by Soviet Russia, to the West Coast.

Taking for granted our favorable relations with Canada, the problem then is, what is our position in Latin America? To maintain more of a union than was achieved at Chapultepec in 1945, it is essential to cultivate not only the self interest but the respect of the Latin American countries. With the exception of Brazil, these countries are culturally related to Spain. They are all Roman Catholic, and that term needs to be understood, for while to most Americans, the Roman Catholic church is a religious sect, to Roman Catholics it is a culture, a way of life. For instance, a Mexican may be anti-clerical, but if he is not a Marxist, he remains a Catholic and his wife and children will be trained in the Catholic faith.

To refuse to recognize Spain and to be offensive to Spain, while recognizing Tito, can only strike a Latin as monstrously illogical, and seeking for logic, he reaches the conclusion that Spain has been rejected by the United States because in that country Catholicism defeated Marxism. As a matter of fact, Spain is the only country in Europe where Christianity and Communism fought it out and Christianity was wholly victorious.

If the foreign and defense policies of the United States are to be integrated, Latin America is more important than Europe, and Spain is more important than any country in Europe because of its cultural influence upon Latin America. A sound policy is an integrated one and this country is on dangerous grounds when its foreign and defense policies are operated in conflict.

SYNOPSIS
Beautiful Celia Dustin is musing on how perfect marriage is to her husband, Mark, a lucky gambler, when her pleasant mood is shattered, for she seemingly has forgotten their second wedding anniversary. Celia overcomes part of a conversation between Mark and the hotel bell captain, following which Mark drives her ostensibly to a new place for lunch. Mark hasn't forgotten, however, the "new place for lunch" turns out to be an exclusive jeweler's, where Celia chooses a $25,000 ruby bracelet as an anniversary present.

CHAPTER FOUR
"THAT'S about what it looks like," said Mark, with elaborate tolerance, when the clerk said the price of the bracelet was $25,000. He waved a smooth sun-tanned hand toward the two trays. "You're wasting our time with junk like this. If you're nothing better than this to show us, we may as well go elsewhere." He started to get up, but the flustered clerk jerked at him with rapid forks of his Adam's apple and an outstretched hand.

"I understand perfectly, sir," he stammered. "Perhaps you'd like to see Mr. Voorland himself. Rubies are a personal hobby with him and I'm sure that if he hasn't exactly what you want in stock, he'll be happy to have it made up for you."

Mark said, "I came in to buy something, not to order it for future delivery." He took another cigarette from the humidor and lit it. "Tell your boss that," he added, and took a deep draft of smoke into his lungs.

Celia sighed and her wistful eyes followed the clerk to the rear as he carried the trays away. "I thought the bracelet was perfect, Mark. Did he say twenty-five thousand dollars?"

Mark chuckled, showing strong white teeth. "Maybe he meant Mexican pesos," he teased. "That stuff was junk, baby." He went on tolerantly. "Why do you suppose I haven't bought you any jewelry these past two years? I've been waiting until I could afford the best. When people look at you I don't want them to feel sorry for me and whisper, 'Dustin must have hit a streak of bad luck. Look at that cheap little bracelet his wife is wearing.' You let me worry about the price," he went on confidently as a tall, solid man approached them from the rear.

Walter Voorland had been designed by nature for the position he held as manager of the most exclusive and expensive jewelry shop in the most exclusive and expensive resort center in the United States. He carried his well-fleshed body with an air of dignified respectability which held none of the subservient of the common shopkeeper, yet with no trace of the insolent hauteur too often found in such an establishment. He was a big-boned man, wearing a conservative brown business suit, a soft white shirt and a subdued flowered cravat. His head was completely bald and pink, and his ruddy face glowed with health and intelligence. His heavy brows were bleached a light tan by the Miami sun, and his gaze was direct and pleasant and friendly. He had a firm handshake for Mark Dustin, and his voice was strong and warm with only a faint touch of his native Holland accent sounding through the cultivated tones.

"I'm very pleased to meet you, sir, and will be happy to be of service to you if I may."

"My name is Dustin," Mark told him. He had risen to greet the manager. "Mark Dustin, from Colorado," he added, "and this is Mrs. Dustin."

Voorland bowed stiffly from the waist as he took Celia's hand. "Delighted," he said in a tone which made them believe he was, indeed, delighted. "I am at your service." He drew up a chair to the opposite side of the table and lowered his solid bulk into it, planting his feet together in front of him and placing the palms of his hands on his knees.

"We were told," said Mark, "that your store carries the finest stock of good jewelry in Greater Miami. That's why we came here."

Mr. Voorland said, "Naturally." Dustin spread out his hands in a half-humorous gesture. "I had rubies in mind. Perhaps a bracelet. But your clerk brought only one cheap one for us to look at."

"Rubies?" Voorland studied Celia intently, nodding his bald head. "Perfect. With your hair, Mrs. Dustin, and your exquisite complexion, rubies, definitely. Are you a connoisseur, Mr. Dustin?"

"Not a bit of it," Dustin laughed. "I'm just in love with the most beautiful woman in the world and this is our anniversary and I'm looking for something very special to celebrate the occasion."

Voorland lifted his right hand from his knee and reached inside his coat to get a pack of chewing gum. He pulled two of the sticks out and offered them in turn to Celia and Mark Dustin. When they declined, he gravely slid one stick from its paper and thrust it in his mouth.

"My only major vice," he confessed. "I find that I think better and more clearly while chewing gum. It was very trying for me during the war when gum was so scarce."

Neither of them said anything while he munched meditatively. Mark was beginning to look bored, and Celia was losing some of her bright expectancy to disgust and irritation at his smacking.

Presently Voorland said, "Precious gems are my vocation and my avocation, Mr. Dustin. They are my life. I know them all, have studied them all, from the far places whence they come through the great markets and cutting centers of the world. It is curious that you should come to me for rubies. Or, perhaps it is not curious at all. Perhaps you came to me because you have heard I am the greatest authority in the world on rubies." He rolled up the rumpled lids of his deepest eyes and looked at them inquiringly.

Dustin shook his head. "We just happened to drop in," he said with a touch of asperity. "If that dinky bracelet your man showed us is the best..."

"I am about to tell you about rubies, Mr. Dustin," Voorland interrupted, holding up a smooth beefy hand to silence him. "Rubies are the most royal of gems. Diamonds? Bah! Cold and glittering on the surface. Emeralds? They have color and brilliance, but without warmth or vitality. Green is an unpleasant color. It betokens jealousy and hatred. A dangerous color. The sapphire? Better... yes. One could stand to make friends with a true blue sapphire and live with it. It has brilliance and depth and a certain warmth. But the ruby?" His voice changed like that of a lover whose beloved suddenly appears on the scene.

"The ruby is alive," he continued, shifting his eyes from Celia to Mark. "Caught within its depths are the fires of passion, the red glow of eternal desire, the crimson hue of the rising sun. There is a strength and a fierceness and a clean burning fury in the blood-red flames that mark the true, perfect ruby. Formed by nature in the roaring cauldrons of hades itself."

"All right, Mr. Voorland," Dustin interrupted, "you don't have to sell me on rubies. I'm here to buy some. If you haven't anything in stock, we'll go along."

Voorland sighed deeply. He skinned another piece of gum and put it between his jaws and munched ruminatively for a moment, then said, "I'm afraid you don't quite understand, Mr. Dustin. The true ruby is far more rare than any other stone. There are no Cullinans, no Kohinoors. Two of the largest known to history are those belonging to the King of Bishapur in India. Fifty-four and one-half carats, both of which are priceless. The bracelet you were shown is a beautiful example of selection and design. Each stone is perfect and uniform, the result of years of tireless seeking among the great markets of the world. The price you were asked..."

"That may all be true," Dustin interrupted him with a careless gesture, "but it doesn't look like much. Nobody except an expert will glance at it twice. I want Celia to have something that will make people sit up and take notice."

LOST 52 LBS. REPORTS MIDDLETOWN LADY

Mrs. H. May, 2109 Finley St., Middletown, Ohio, writes: "A few months ago I weighed 208 lbs., and naturally being overweight wanted to reduce. A friend of mine told me about Rennie. Since taking Rennie I have lost 52 pounds and now weigh 156. I have never felt better in my life, and would take nothing for losing weight but marvelous Rennie Concentrate."

Hundreds of others have obtained similar relief from the social and physical discomforts of being overweight. Why not try this effective yet inexpensive method of reducing and enjoy the pleasure of feeling younger and more alive. Try Rennie and notice the admiring looks you will receive from your friends as your figure becomes younger and your vitality increases. Just go to your druggist and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Rennie. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle and then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you aren't satisfied with the results, return the empty bottle to the manufacturer and your money will be refunded. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennie—no starvation diet—no printed diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. Insist upon genuine Rennie.

Calvary EUB Church Is Scene Saturday For Shirey-Russell Nuptials

Rev. Clay Reads Rites

Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jennie Shirey and Carl Russell. The Rev. Doyle E. Clay officiated at the ceremony, which took place Saturday night, performed before an altar decorated with foliage and baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons, and lighted by tapers of seven-branch candelabra.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shirey of Columbus, was given in marriage by her uncle, Ludwig Shirey. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude L. Russell of Ashville.

The bride chose a white satin gown with medium train, for her wedding. The gown was fashioned with fitted bodice, long sleeves and a lace-edged neckline. Her veil was draped from a crown of beaded satin. Her prayer book was topped with ivy and white chrysanthemums.

Serving as matron-of-honor was Mrs. Manley Smith of West Main Street. Mrs. Harold Pearce of North Scioto Street was bride's matron. Miss Lola Acord of East Franklin Street was the third attendant.

Howard Frazier Jr. was best man. Harold Pearce and Leon Mumfield served as ushers.

Nuptial music was provided by Miss Doris Spangler and Miss Olive Spangler.

The bride is a graduate of Columbus South high school. The bridegroom is a graduate of Jackson Township high school. He is engaged in farming. The couple will live in the Amanda community.

79th Birthday Is Observed

Mrs. Florence Betz of 517 East Main street was given a birthday party by a number of friends and relatives Monday evening. Calvary EUB Church
Is Scene Saturday For
Shirey-Russell Nuptials

Rev. Clay
Reads Rites

Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jennie Shirey and Carl Russell. The Rev. Doyle E. Clay officiated at the ceremony, which took place Saturday night, performed before an altar decorated with foliage and baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons, and lighted by tapers of seven-branch candelabra.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shirey of Columbus, was given in marriage by her uncle, Ludwig Shirey. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude L. Russell of Ashville.

The bride chose a white satin gown with medium train, for her wedding. The gown was fashioned with fitted bodice, long sleeves and a lace-edged neckline. Her veil was draped from a crown of beaded satin. Her prayer book was topped with ivy and white chrysanthemums.

Serving as matron-of-honor was Mrs. Manley Smith of West Main Street. Mrs. Harold Pearce of North Scioto Street was bride's matron. Miss Lola Acord of East Franklin Street was the third attendant.

Howard Frazier Jr. was best man. Harold Pearce and Leon Sumfield served as ushers.

Nuptial music was provided by Miss Doris Spangler and Miss Olive Spangler.

The bride is a graduate of Columbus South high school. The bridegroom is a graduate of Jackson Township high school. He is engaged in farming. The couple will live in the Amanda community.

Nourish, absolutely nothing can bring as much brightness and cheer into the home at small cost as Johnston Paints. This is no ordinary paint with hit or miss color or combining method but a paint that has 120 different color combinations all mixed and ready for you to use. You can be assured when you start with a certain shade that you will be able to secure that same shade until the job is completed. Smart, new, exciting colors—just what the homemaker has been waiting for. Matching your draperies, rugs and furnishings is assured with this new paint that is the talk of the town. Drop in at Griffith Floorcovering and ask for the "How To Do It" book that is free for the asking.

Positively the newest and most exciting piece of house furniture that we have seen lately is the hand painted dinnette chairs that are now being shown at Blue Furniture store. They are a quilted plastic back with a floral design. The ones we saw were in pastel colors—a wild rose on a light background. Here is an article of furniture that is certain to bring a note of Spring into your home. The table that accompanies these beautiful chairs is also outstanding and different. It is a drop-leaf affair with genuine Formosa top and Duncan Fyffe base. These sets are custom made and come in almost 100 different color combinations. It is because they are custom-made that there is no extra charge for the color combination—you may make your own selection.

Now for the smart younger set the most popular shop in town is Hoover Music Store. This is where they buy those fascinating records that make a small or large gathering a happy get-together. There is sure to be calls for "Dear Hearts and Gentle People" by Dinah Shore now if there hadn't been before. Her rendition on the TV Sunday night on "Toast of the Town" program was really something. And have you heard Phil Harris sing "Old Master Painter"? If not you had better bet yourself to Hoover's and get the record. While you are there another one you will want is Bing Crosby and Frankie Laine singing "Mule Train".

Time was when a drug store was a very staid and smelly place to go where the scent of drugs made children think of painful things like having a tooth extracted or an ear-ache or some other dire calamity. However that time is gone and now a drug store is a second department store. For those whose memories are short and who need small household articles on short notice the modern drug store is certainly a boon. However at the Rexall Store emphasis is placed in no small degree on the prescription department. After all, all health can't be weighed but every gram and dram of ingredients specified by your doctor's prescription can and must be weighed exactly. The pharmaceuticals at this store are top grade, the equipment is best and the pharmacists are prompt and accurate. Bring your next prescription to the Rexall Store.

During the Roosevelt administration, when the State Department functioned with adoration for Russia, Communism made tremendous inroads in Latin America, particularly in Cuba and Mexico. Lombardo Toledano, the leader of Mexican Communism, was a great factor in the development of a Marxist enclave. While such influences have become weakened in the Latin countries, they are by no means dead.

Peron represents our greatest error in Latin America. The United States opposed his rise to power which he has never quite forgotten. Our opposition was based on the utterly false assumption that we could pick between good and bad dictators; that Stalin was a good dictator and Peron a bad one. But Peron turned out to be a very successful one, who not only established himself over the Argentine, but has also pursued an independent attitude vis-a-vis American policy.

This country, in its defensive program, must make sure of the

CRUCIAL GAMES AHEAD

Friday To Tell Final Tale In County Court League

Friday probably will be the tell-tale day of the 1950 Pickaway County Basketball League when Jackson Wildcats invade at New Holland.

Both teams now are tied for the theoretical second place position in standings to date with seven wins and one loss each.

Ashville Broncos, on the other hand, is statistically at the head of the county pile-up with a record of eight wins in nine starts to date. The Broncos have only one more league game scheduled this season, and that one against the Saltcreek Warriors. Saltcreek has yet to win a league contest.

Except for the Friday match, both New Holland and Ashville also have comparatively easy season-enders. New Holland will play Atlanta in its season finale.

Walnut Accepts Benefit Joust

Walnut Tigers basketball team will travel to Philo Tuesday to meet the highly-touted Philo quintet in a March of Dimes benefit game.

Harry Lamb, coach of the Walnut team, said the arrangements were made through Philo Coach Bob Dickey, who is in his freshman coaching year this season.

Lamb said he and Dickey played basketball together through high school and later through college. The Philo team has a record of 14 wins and one loss to date this season.

Brumfield Wins Foul Shot Trophy

Junior Meet Moves Into Semi-Finals

Bob Brumfield, sixth grade Pickaway Township elementary basketball player, is the 1950 Pickaway County junior foul-shooting champion.

Brumfield won the title during the current junior tournament in Jackson Township school when he netted 19 charity tosses in 25 attempts, topping all other contestants.

The Pickaway boy's title was challenged for a final time Monday when Joe Alkire of Monroe stepped to the charity toss line and proceeded to drop 18 of the free throws into the netting.

Norman McPherson of Walnut and Jim Mowery of Williamsport tied Alkire for second place honors in the contest by also scoring 18.

Brumfield received a trophy for his accuracy on the foul line, the only individual trophy awarded during the junior tournament.

Competition in the fight for the championship of the junior tournament grew razor-keen Monday during the second round of play.

OF THE FOUR quarter-finals games, two games went into overtime and the remaining two were decided by margins of less than seven points.

And one of the extra-time matches required a sudden death period to clinch it.

The long-winded game was between Williamsport and Darby junior high cagers. The teams had met twice prior to the tournament, with Williamsport emerging the victor both times.

Williamsport again topped the Darby quint during the Monday fracas, although only by a meagre 37-36 margin after two overtimes. At the end of the regular game the score was deadlocked at 30-30, while both teams garnered five points in the first overtime to post a 35-35 tie and force the game into additional play.

The Williamsporters finally won the fracas by tallying two charity tosses while Darby could connect for but one.

Scioto Township juniors turned in a surprising performance in the second deadlocked contest of the evening when they came from behind to knot up the score with Pickaway at 34-34 as the final buzzer sounded.

The Scioto team, however, surged ahead in the overtime to score eight points and the win while Pickaway struggled to add two points to its score.

New Holland juniors overcame a first half deficit in their contest with Monroe Monday to wind up with a narrow 33-31 victory.

THE NEW HOLLAND team trailed at 13-4 in the first period and by 22-17 at halftime, although sweeping back in the third and fourth frames to score two-point advantages to garner the win.

The most decisive victory of the evening was turned in by

Ashville boys, who scored a 26-20 win over Saltcreek following a first half disadvantage.

Saltcreek led during the first two stanzas of the encounter, although it failed to follow through in the second half as Ashville pounded past to lead in both of the last cantos.

New Holland will play against Ashville in the first semi-final game scheduled for Wednesday, while the Williamsport crew will play Scioto in the other contest.

Schedule for the semi is New Holland vs. Ashville at 7 p. m. and Williamsport vs. Scioto at 8 p. m.

3 Victories Chalked By Volleyballers

Rotary Jaycees and Hedges Chapel volleyball teams registered wins Monday in the Moose volleyball league.

Rotary notched up a 3-2 win over Kiwanis in the closest contest of the evening, breaking into the win column following a 2-2 deadlock.

Hedges Chapel, replacing the Moose sextet, easily won over the Reserve Army officers with three straight wins, while Jaycees posted a 3-1 victory over Sinawik (backward Kiwanis), represented Monday by the first Kiwanis team.

Frank Wilkins, organizer of the Moose volleyball league, said the Sinawik team has withdrawn from the loop. Another team is needed to round out the six-team league, he said.

"Any organization or group can enter," Wilkins said. "All they need are six players, gym shoes and trunks."

Schedule for next Monday's league is Hedges Chapel vs. Rotary and Jaycees vs. Reserve officers. Kiwanis will play against a new team if the league is rounded out.

CRUCIAL GAMES AHEAD

Friday To Tell Final Tale In County Court League

Friday probably will be the tell-tale day of the 1950 Pickaway County Basketball League when Jackson Wildcats invade at New Holland.

Both teams now are tied for the theoretical second place position in standings to date with seven wins and one loss each.

Ashville Broncos, on the other hand, is statistically at the head of the county pile-up with a record of eight wins in nine starts to date. The Broncos have only one more league game scheduled this season, and that one against the Saltcreek Warriors. Saltcreek has yet to win a league contest.

Except for the Friday match, both New Holland and Ashville also have comparatively easy season-enders. New Holland will play Atlanta in its season finale.

Walnut Accepts Benefit Joust

Walnut Tigers basketball team will travel to Philo Tuesday to meet the highly-touted Philo quintet in a March of Dimes benefit game.

Harry Lamb, coach of the Walnut team, said the arrangements were made through Philo Coach Bob Dickey, who is in his freshman coaching year this season.

Lamb said he and Dickey played basketball together through high school and later through college. The Philo team has a record of 14 wins and one loss to date this season.

while Jackson will meet Pickaway. The league ends Feb. 10. A win Friday for either team will place that team in a tie for the leadership with Ashville, since the Broncos are meeting a non-league team this week.

TWELVE GAMES are carded for this week in Pickaway County. Tuesday's schedule calls for five matches, a single scrap is booked for Wednesday and six tilts are booked for Friday.

Schedule for this week's county court activities is:

TUESDAY
Ashville vs. Circleville in Coliseum.
Jackson at Laurelville.
Madison Mills at Monroe.
Bloomington at Atlanta.
Scioto at Amanda.

WEDNESDAY

Brumfield Wins Foul Shot Trophy

Junior Meet Moves Into Semi-Finals

Bob Brumfield, sixth grade Pickaway Township elementary basketball player, is the 1950 Pickaway County junior foul-shooting champion.

Brumfield won the title during the current junior tournament in Jackson Township school when he netted 19 charity tosses in 25 attempts, topping all other contestants.

The Pickaway boy's title was challenged for a final time Monday when Joe Alkire of Monroe stepped to the charity toss line and proceeded to drop 18 of the free throws into the netting.

Norman McPherson of Walnut and Jim Mowery of Williamsport tied Alkire for second place honors in the contest by also scoring 18.

Brumfield received a trophy for his accuracy on the foul line, the only individual trophy awarded during the junior tournament.

Competition in the fight for the championship of the junior tournament grew razor-keen Monday during the second round of play.

OF THE FOUR quarter-finals games, two games went into overtime and the remaining two were decided by margins of less than seven points.

And one of the extra-time matches required a sudden death period to clinch it.

The long-winded game was between Williamsport and Darby junior high cagers. The teams had met twice prior to the tourney, with Williamsport emerging the victor both times.

Williamsport again topped the Darby quint during the Monday fracas, although only by a meagre 37-36 margin after two overtimes. At the end of the regular game the score was deadlocked at 30-30, while both teams garnered five points in the first overtime to post a 35-35 tie and force the game into additional play.

The Williamsporters finally won the fracas by tallying two charity tosses while Darby could connect for but one.

Scioto Township juniors turned in a surprising performance in the second deadlocked contest of the evening when they came from behind to knot up the score with Pickaway at 34-34 as the final buzzer sounded.

The Scioto team, however, surged ahead in the overtime to score eight points and the win while Pickaway struggled to add two points to its score.

New Holland juniors overcame a first half deficit in their contest with Monroe Monday to wind up with a narrow 33-31 victory.

THE NEW HOLLAND team trailed at 13-6 in the first period and by 22-17 at halftime, although sweeping back in the third and fourth frames to score two-point advantages to garner the win.

The most decisive victory of the evening was turned in by

Ashville boys, who scored a 28-20 win over Saltcreek following a first half disadvantage.

Saltcreek led during the first two stanzas of the encounter, although it failed to follow through in the second half as Ashville pounded past to lead in both of the last cantos.

New Holland will play against Ashville in the first semi-final game scheduled for Wednesday, while the Williamsport crew will play Scioto in the other contest.

Schedule for the semi is New Holland vs. Ashville at 7 p. m. and Williamsport vs. Scioto at 8 p. m.

Circus Taking On Sawdusty Flavor As Opening Nears

Local Show Enlarging Its Activity

Another Foreign Troupe Is Signed

Circleville—gradually becoming known as Circusville, both in Ohio and around the country as Mills Bros. Circus advertises its Winter Quarters base on its tours of the nation—takes on even more of a sawdusty flavor this week with the advent of February.

Opening day, Saturday April 15, when the three-ring circus stages two performances on Pickaway Fairgrounds for the benefit of recreational activities of children at Pickaway County Home, is now just two and a half months away. And in the remaining 10 weeks before Equestrian Director Burt Wallace's whistle launches the 11th annual four Winter quarters activity will build to a fever pitch.

Signing of still another foreign troupe was announced by Manager Jack Mills from his Cleveland home Tuesday, bringing to 10 the number of imported units to be featured with the mid-century edition of the nation's largest motorized circus. They are the Charlotte Rickert troupe, five-girl German acrobatic and juggling performers. They join the English, Swiss, Chinese, Bulgarian, Australian, and Cuban performers announced a week ago.

Also linked to 1950 contracts for prominent spots in the performance this week are Joe and Annette Dobas, Russian perch and hand balancing experts, and petite Virginia Noel, only miss in the world to be carried by the head in the jaws of an elephant. Circleville's favorite, Big Burma, the Dobas and Miss Noel both were stars with the show last season and were brought back by request.

"WE WILL PUT emphasis on the foreign features and also on a vastly-strengthened clown alley this year," Jake Mills said, and disclosed that four more clowns have been booked, joining the eight English comics who were announced earlier.

The Mills family returned to Cleveland after a trip to Washington, D. C., a week ago and this week will find Jake Mills off on another business trip, obtaining several buses which will be driven into the Circleville quarters and converted into huge sleeper units to accommodate some of the increased personnel with this year's show.

The huge cookhouse truck was sent to Pennsylvania last week for installation of a brand new, custom-built frigidaire unit. Three new electric light plants have been received at the fairgrounds circus base and they boost the lighting capacity to double the power of last season.

Charley Brady, general superintendent, and his crew have completed painting all seats and reserved chairs, have turned out a large sleeper and are making additions to the animal cage department.

Departmental head appointments announced this week are headed by Brady, general superintendent.

Mrs. Brady, reserved seats, and Arthur Leonard, chief electrician, all starting their 10th season with the Mills Bros. Others returning to key posts, all familiar figures to Circleville residents, are Burt and Jeanette Wallace, equestrian director and horse and dog trainer; Mark Roe, steward, who is now feeding nearly 50 men daily in quarters; Don Mann and Ray Haddix, mechanics who are overhauling units of the show's motorized fleet now; Lawrence Benner, Miamisburg native who is side show manager; Sammy Burnstein, purchasing agent; and Bob Mills—no relation to the owners—who will head the band for the third straight season.

More and more visitors have appeared at quarters, particularly with fair weather which has prevailed on recent weekends, and several queries have been received from school authorities about bringing students to see animal training in progress, meet Big Burma, and watch general Wintertime circus preparations. The Mills Bros. again stress that all are welcome.

Consumption of all types of electric light bulbs in the United States last year was a dozen per capita. Almost two billion bulbs, worth $200 million, were shipped from factories.

Petition Asks Right To Sell Part Of Estate

A petition to sell a one-fifth interest in a business building on East Main street has been filed in Pickaway County probate court by Lemuel B. Weldon, guardian of David S. Courtright.

The petition claims the sale is necessary to pay debts and for the support of the ward.

Also in probate court Judge George D. Young ordered transfer of approximately 80 acres in Pickaway Township, part of the Harry A. Hildenbrand estate, to Effie F. Hildenbrand. She is given a life estate in the property, with power to sell but not to will it.

The remainder, if any, will go to Mrs. Lillie Hinton of Kingston, Mrs. Mary Schneider, Mrs. Pearl White, Mrs. Charity Hurtt and Donald Hildenbrand, all of Chillicothe; Mrs. Daisy Cottrell of Bourneville, Jesse Hildenbrand of Kingston and John Hildenbrand of Williamsport.

Local Hereford Group Selects Director Panel

At a recent meeting of the officers of Pickaway County Hereford Association, a board of directors was appointed for one year.

Those appointed were Clarence Maxson of Salt Creek Township, Paul Dillon and Joe Peters of Walnut Township, J. B. Stevenson of Wayne Township, Roy Griffith of Perry Township, Clyde Cook of Jackson Township and Harold Hall of Harrison Township.

Committees for the coming year were appointed and a membership drive was planned.

Further plans were made for the Hereford Field Day to be held June 22 on the Clyde Cook farm on Circleville Route 2. Paul Dillon was appointed chairman of the Field Day committee.

Court Orders Land Partition

Partition of a tract of land in New Holland has been ordered by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court.

The court decree gives a one ninth interest each to Lilly Swaney, Clarence Shaw, Harry Shaw, Charles Shaw, Millard Shaw, John Shaw, Herbert Shaw and Delno Shaw, and a one 27th interest to Dorothy Hopper, Virginia Deckenbach and Kathryn Harold.

Petition requesting partition was filed by Lilly Swaney. Judge Radcliff appointed William Fricke, Ray Griffith and John Dick commissioners to make and set off the partition.

which might be suggested by the parties.

"THE PARTIES or either of them would be free to accept or reject the recommendations of the board as they see fit."

Mr. Truman said that in making the proposal "I do not wish to interfere with any bargaining conferences that may assist in the settlement of this dispute."

He asked that he be informed by noon Saturday "if the normal production of coal will be resumed on Monday." He said:

"If production will be so resumed this proposal may be disregarded. If you cannot inform me that normal production will be resumed on Monday without reference to this proposal, I would then want your reply to this proposal by 5 p. m. Saturday, and I urge your acceptance in the national interest."

Girl, 9, Burned As Dress Flames In Grocery

A nine-year-old Hayward avenue girl received second degree burns to her body at about 3:30 p. m. Monday when her dress caught fire.

She is Judy Blevins who lives with her sister at 137 Hayward avenue.

The youngster had been in a neighborhood grocery at the time of the mishap. Her dress caught fire when she backed too close to a gas stove.

Mrs. S. W. Ankrom said the flames were put out when the girl was wrapped in coats and blankets, and the youngster was rushed into Berger hospital for treatment.

Hospital attaches said the youngster suffered second degree burns to the body, chiefly to the hips. Her condition is fair.

Columbus Man Has No Permit

Bill Wolfe, 27, of Columbus, was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to two days in jail by Mayor Walter Heise in South Bloomfield Monday for driving while his license is revoked.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said he arrested Wolfe for a minor traffic violation, but that the other charge was filed when Wolfe stated that his license had been revoked. Wolfe's admission was backed up by the bureau of motor vehicles.

Drunk Driving Cited After Bump Of Cruiser

Only one accident was reported Monday night as the result of the icy drizzle which fell in Circleville—and that accident involved the city police cruiser.

Officers Earl Wallace and Rod List reported that they had been at the intersection of Pickaway and Franklin streets late Monday to turn off the traffic signal there when the mishap occurred.

They said that another auto, parked about 15 yards from the intersection, had remained motionless throughout the light-switching procedure, but that when the police cruiser was started up the car whirled into the cruiser.

The other auto was driven by Edgel McNichols, 33, of South Bloomfield, who is booked for drunken driving.

The officers said that McNichols had "scraped" only about a three-inch hole through the ice on his windshield and apparently was unable to see the cruiser. Damage was minor.

Drunk Driver Is Fined $100

Glenn B. Forrest, 25, of 434 East Union street was fined $100 and costs Monday in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller for drunken driving.

Forrest was arrested on East Mound street by Officer Rod List.

Big Rock Seen Having Grip On Big Battleship

ship free from the trap that has held her since Jan. 17.

Divers who probed the sea bottom were not able to confirm immediately that the Big Mo might be held by rocks, but they reported two relatively small holes in her outer hull—the largest four feet by ten feet.

Boatswain's Mate Third Class Raymond Mansfield of Lowell, Mass., who made three dives, said the Missouri appeared to be resting in "sort of sand and gravel." He described the sea bottom around the Big Mo as "like quicksand in places."

Other divers reported finding some rocks on the starboard side of the Mo, some of them about one and one-half feet in diameter. The presence of those rocks indicated, naval experts said, that a larger one could be jammed into the battleship's underside.

90-Day Term Given Man, 22

James Burkhardt, 22, of East Union street was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 90 days in Columbus workhouse Monday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for assault and battery.

The charge was filed by Alonzo Shonkwiler, Burkhardt's father-in-law, who cited that the man struck him on the chin.

Root said the 90-day sentence is to be served before the fine is paid.

DEATHS and Funerals

DAVID DETTY

David Pickens Detty, 99, died in the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Williams of Frankfort at 5:40 a. m. Sunday. Mr. Detty, who would have been 100 years old June 3, was ill for three months preceding his death.

Mr. Detty, who was a farmer before his retirement, is survived by his widow, Mary Ann Crago Detty, whom he married in 1880.

Other survivors are four daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Ola Christmas of Washington, C. H.; four sons, one of whom is Fred Detty of Circleville; two sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Louise Aldridge of Circleville; 47 grandchildren, 30 great grandchildren and 60 great great grandchildren.

Funeral services were to have been held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Fischer Funeral Home. Burial was to have been in Greenlawn cemetery in Frankfort.

ANNA L. RATCLIFF

Anna L. Ratcliff, 77, died in her home in Allensville Friday following a lengthy illness.

Beside four sons and four daughters who survive are four brothers, Wesley Graves of Kingsport, Wilson Graves of Clarksburg, Walter Graves of Londonderry and William Graves of Allensville.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday in Londonderry.

Solons Ponder Legal Angle In Sheep Claim

Does Pickaway County pay for dog-mangled sheep when the owner lives in another county?

The question furrowed brows of county commissioners Tuesday when they pondered the case of sheep killed in Monroe Township and owned by Frank Lambert of Fayette County.

Dog Warden Harry Riffle explained that dogs killed four Lambert sheep on his Monroe Township land. Lambert, however, lives in Fayette County. Would the commissioners honor his claim?

"A matter of law," said the county chiefs. "We'll get advice."

"I'll look it up," promised legal adviser Guy Cline.

"The claim is filed in the township where the sheep are killed," opined County Auditor Fred Tipton, after consulting the Ohio Code.

Fayette Fair Board Winner Of Court Test

Judge H. M. Rankin has sustained a motion of the Fayette County fair board to strike an answer and 21 interrogatories from the files in the application of the board to have the court impanel a jury to fix compensation for 57 acres of land including Fayette County fairgrounds.

Judge Rankin held that no answer could be filed in the proceedings.

The board made Earl Scott and others defendants in the suit and former Chief Justice Carlington T. Marshal represents the defendants.

The fair board had leased the grounds from the Scotts for many years and with death of the former owner, a year ago, the board sought to acquire the property through court action.

W. W. Hill, attorney for the board, said he would press for early impaneling of the jury to fix compensation.

Burglars Enter Southend Store

Circleville police Tuesday were investigating the theft of $47.65 in cash from a southend grocery store in one of the newest break-ins to date.

The looted store was Ward's grocery at Walnut and Court street, which was entered through a window on the much-travelled Court street side.

Police said a small pinch bar or screwdriver had been used to pry open the window, and that the whole operation failed to awaken residents who live over the store.

Ward Skinner, owner of the store, said that nothing but the cash had been taken.

Liquor Board Ponders Case

The Ohio Board of Liquor Control in Columbus Tuesday took under advisement an accusation against Scioto lodge IBPOEW of Circleville.

The local lodge was accused to making illegal sales.

George Johnson, exalted ruler, and Walter Jones Jr., bartender, admitted to the sales in a hearing before the state panel.

The Ohio board delayed decision on the case when the two lodge officials declared in their plea that their lodge "is the only spot in Circleville where a Negro can buy a drink."

Fellowcraft Club Plans Future

Fellowcraft Club of the Circleville Masonic Blue Lodge held its first regular meeting Monday in Masonic Temple.

The club, founded recently as a social order in the Masonic order for extra-curricular activities, discussed plans for coming social programs and agreed to put on a program for a "family night" in April.

Jim Denman and Jack Pierce were named to head the program committee during this session, according to Wendell Turner, president of the club.
